WHO IS BIGFOOT?

Stories about Bigfoot have been told by people across the world for many years. Some believe he's a giant bear that walks on two legs. Others think he may be a giant gorilla roaming the forests.

This picture is from the famous 1967 video taken in 1967 in Northern California's Six Rivers National Forest by Roger Patterson and Bob Gimlin. Some people think this Bigfoot was only a person in a costume. Others believe it's the real deal. What do you think?

HAVE YOU SEEN A REAL BIGFOOT?

There are many stories about what Bigfoot looks like. They all share some details: a big, furry, bear-like creature that is 7 feet (2.3 m) to 9 feet (3 m) tall. Most people think Bigfoot is brown, but many believe they have seen black, gray, white, or greenish-blue Bigfoots. Some say he has large eyes and a big forehead. The top of his head might have the same shape as a gorilla. If you see someone walking around who looks like this, you're probably looking at Bigfoot!

Bigfoot might be able to run 30 miles per hour (48 kph). Most people run much slower than that!

WHERE DID THE NAME BIGFOOT COME FROM?

In the 1800s, the name Bigfoot was first used for huge grizzly bears in the United States. David Thompson may have found the first real set of Bigfoot footprints when he was hiking over the Rocky Mountains in 1811. His tracks were too big for even a large bear. The name Bigfoot was used again when people started seeing huge footprints in the forest. These footprints were about 24 inches (61 cm) long and 8 inches (20 cm) wide, twice as big as an adult shoe. Many people believe that these big footprints are proof that our Bigfoot really does exist!
