If you're a Hispanophile, Lisbon is the perfect city for you. The city is home to a large Spanish-speaking community, and there are plenty of opportunities to practice your Spanish. You can also find a wide variety of Spanish food, music, and culture in Lisbon.

Here are some of the best things to do in Lisbon for a Hispanophile:

- Visit the Museu Nacional do Azulejo (National Tile Museum). This museum houses a collection of over 7,000 tiles, dating from the 15th century to the present day. It's a great place to learn about the history of Portuguese tilework, and to see some of the most beautiful tiles in the world.
- Take a walk through the Alfama district. The Alfama is Lisbon's oldest district, and it's a labyrinth of narrow streets and whitewashed houses. It's a great place to get lost and to soak up the city's atmosphere.
- Visit the São Jorge Castle. The São Jorge Castle is a medieval castle that sits on a hilltop overlooking the city. It's a great place to get panoramic views of Lisbon, and to learn about the city's history.
- Go to a fado show. Fado is a traditional Portuguese music genre that is characterized by its mournful melodies and passionate lyrics. It's a great way to experience Portuguese culture, and there are plenty of fado clubs in Lisbon where you can see a show.
- Eat some Portuguese food. Portuguese food is delicious and diverse, and there are plenty of great restaurants in Lisbon where you can try it. Some of the most popular Portuguese dishes include bacalhau (cod), sardines, and caldo verde (green soup).

Lisbon is a city that has something to offer everyone. Whether you're interested in history, architecture, nightlife, or food, you're sure to find something to love in Lisbon. So come and experience the City of Eternal Youth for yourself!
