Plot Summary

The novel is set in Moscow during the 1930s. The story begins with the arrival of a mysterious foreigner, Professor Woland, and his retinue. Woland quickly establishes himself as a powerful and enigmatic figure, and he soon begins to wreak havoc on the city.

Meanwhile, the novel also follows the story of the Master, a writer who has been persecuted by the Soviet authorities. The Master has written a novel about Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor who condemned Jesus Christ to death. The Master's novel is a masterpiece, but it has been rejected by the censors. The Master has been driven to the brink of despair, and he has given up writing.

Margarita, the Master's lover, is determined to help him. She goes to Woland and asks him for help. Woland agrees to help Margarita, and he gives her a magical cream that allows her to become invisible. Margarita uses the cream to infiltrate the secret meeting place of the Soviet writers' union, where she steals the Master's novel.

The Master and Margarita are reunited, and they flee Moscow together. They find refuge in a small village, where they live in peace and happiness. However, the Soviet authorities are still pursuing them, and they eventually find them. The Master is arrested and taken to prison, where he is tortured and killed.

Margarita is heartbroken, but she is determined to get revenge. She goes to Woland and asks him for help. Woland agrees to help Margarita, and he takes her to a ball, where she meets Satan. Satan agrees to help Margarita, and he gives her a magical sword.

Margarita uses the sword to kill the Soviet officials who were responsible for the Master's death. She then returns to Woland and asks him to take her to the Master. Woland agrees, and he takes Margarita to a place where she can be reunited with the Master.
