History of the Prairie Anna Peggy House

Anna Peggy was born in Illinois in 1825. She married William H. Smith in 1845, and the couple moved to Iowa in 1854. They settled in the town of Maquoketa, where Anna Peggy quickly became involved in the community. She was a strong advocate for education, and she helped to establish the town's first school. She was also active in the women's suffrage movement, and she was one of the first women in Iowa to vote.

In 1868, Anna Peggy and her husband built the Prairie Anna Peggy House. The house was a large and impressive structure, and it was one of the first brick homes in Maquoketa. The house featured a number of Victorian architectural details, such as a wraparound porch, a bay window, and a turret.

Anna Peggy lived in the house for many years, and she died there in 1909. The house remained in the Smith family until 1968, when it was sold to the Maquoketa Historical Society. The Historical Society has since restored the house to its original condition, and it is now open to the public as a museum.

Architecture of the Prairie Anna Peggy House

The Prairie Anna Peggy House is a beautiful example of Victorian architecture. The house is made of red brick, and it has a hipped roof with a cupola. The front of the house features a wraparound porch with a balustrade, and there is a bay window on the side of the house. The house also has a turret that rises from the roof.

The interior of the house is equally impressive. The house has a large central hallway with a staircase that leads to the second floor. The house also has several parlors, a dining room, a kitchen, and a library. The house is furnished with period furniture, and it has been decorated to reflect the Victorian era.
