If you're considering buying an all-electric vehicle, the Volkswagen ID. is definitely worth checking out. Here are some of the things you need to know before you buy:

Range and Charging

The Volkswagen ID. has a range of up to 260 miles on a single charge. This is a good range for most drivers, but it's important to keep in mind that your actual range will vary depending on factors such as your driving style, the temperature, and the terrain you're driving on.

The Volkswagen ID. can be charged using a standard 120-volt outlet, but it will take a long time to fully charge the battery this way. It's best to use a 240-volt outlet, which will charge the battery much faster.

Trim Levels and Features

The Volkswagen ID. is available in three different trim levels: Pure, Pro, and Pro S. The Pure trim level is the most basic, and it comes standard with features such as a 10-inch touchscreen display, Apple CarPlay and Android Auto integration, and a suite of driver-assist systems.

The Pro trim level adds features such as a panoramic sunroof, heated front seats, and a navigation system. The Pro S trim level is the top-of-the-line model, and it comes standard with features such as a 12-inch touchscreen display, a premium sound system, and a leather interior.

Pricing

The Volkswagen ID. Pure trim level starts at $39,995. The Pro trim level starts at $43,995, and the Pro S trim level starts at $49,995. These prices do not include the federal tax credit of up to $7,500.

The Volkswagen ID. is a great option for anyone who is looking for an all-electric vehicle. It offers a good range, a variety of features, and a competitive price. If you're considering buying an all-electric vehicle, the Volkswagen ID. is definitely worth checking out.
